

In today's continually expanding technological world, the majority of assignments are expected to be typed and printed to exacting standards. Before receiving the generous donation of a well equipped Dell laptop from the Mustard Seed foundation I found myself sacrificing sleep for early morning trips to the library and even my much needed lunch hour to fulfill my research and typing needs. Between school, work, more work and the occasional few hours of sleep I had to find the time for the ever growing amount of schoolwork. After school it's straight to Jo-Arm's, most nights staying into the late hours, leaving little to no time for school assignments, but with the laptop I'm able to take my studies with me, continually striving towards my many goals.

Besides the standard happenings of school, as an inspiring photographer it's useful to have a place to upload my images. Not to mention with the help of the county social worker, Mrs. Meredith Griffin and her husband, I now have all the Adobe graphic software, which provides me with the tools to inspire my creativity. Thanks not only to the donator of the computer, everyone at Mustard Seed, and my own wonderful worker of social needs Mrs. Consuelo Ponce for all the care and support.

Gratefully Yours,
